

Tagged's advertising inventory is available on the Google Display Network.

Using the Google Display Network (GDN), you can specify Tagged for your ad campaign. In addition, GDN offers you the ability to target your ads on Tagged by both demographics and location too.

With GDN for Tagged you can:

- Show your message to potential customers right when they're most likely to notice them.
- Control costs by setting your own budget with Google's auction-pricing system.
- See exactly where your ad ran and understand how it's performing.
- Make smart, real-time improvements with insightful reporting tools.

The following unit sizes are available on Tagged via GDN:

- 728×90
- 300×250
- 160×600

You can target by channel, geography, age, and gender. You can also designate desired frequency capping too. You can even make your own ads with a free display ad builder.

To get started please visit Google Ad Words and follow the step-by-step guide. If you already have a Google Ad Words account, simply log in and access Tagged site placements within the Display Network of Ad Words.

Ad Specs and Guidelines

Tagged has instituted these guidelines to ensure our members see only high quality ads from reputable advertisers.

All advertisements submitted or provided to Tagged must comply with the Advertising Guidelines listed below as modified from time to time (the “Advertising Guidelines”). These Advertising Guidelines are intended to help advertisers create and post clear and effective advertisements that also meet the high standards of quality and integrity expected by users of Tagged. These Advertising Guidelines are not exhaustive and are only examples of the applicable requirements and conditions for advertisements on Tagged.

Tagged.com reserves the right to review all ads prior to acceptance and may request modifications to, reject or delete any advertisement, at any time, at its sole discretion.

General Requirements and Restrictions

Ads must:

- be related to the content, purpose and theme of the landing page of your Tagged Ad (“Ad Landing Page”);
- comply with applicable laws, regulations, including FTC guidelines and policies;
- if containing free offers and discounts, disclose within the ad all material terms and conditions relating to the free offer or special discount;
- if referring to local services or products, clearly disclose the advertiser’s location;
- not contain or imply inaccurate affiliation or endorsement, including but not limited to:
 - any affiliation with Tagged, for example “Tagged special offer”; and
 - follow proper grammar conventions.

Ads must not:

- be deceptive, misleading, or unfair or promote false or misleading claims or include any information that you know is false or misleading;
- contain deceptive pricing;
- use or constitute “bait and switch” advertising;
- make any claim about a product or service (such as diet suppressant, wrinkle remover, or “guaranteed” results) unless it has been substantiated through research or surveys, and that support is publicly available via a third party link from the ad; or

- use superlatives relating to products or services that may be misleading, confusing or unsubstantiated, such as “most popular band on Tagged” (you may use general terms that a consumer understands is not a scientifically proven fact, but is advertising “puffery” such as “best in the world” or “hardest hitting rock band”).

Software Downloads and Site Security:

Ads must not:

- include software downloads, automatic downloads or initiate any download, process or sequence, whether of content or browser add on;
- contain hidden, misleading or harmful functionality; or
- contain any hidden bundled components or otherwise bundle (other than on a clear opt out basis) any feature or functionality with a user approved download, including without limitation software commonly considered or classified as AdWare/Spyware;
- contain or create ActiveX objects or embeds; or
- use any external JavaScript library.

User Experience / Ad Functionality:

Ads must not:

- include excessive animation, expandable units or auto play audio or video;
- employ flashing, shaking, rolling, pulsing graphics, etc. (including animated logos);
- block or impede browser functionality from working as intended (e.g., “Back” and “Close” functionality must be fully operational);
- feature false or misleading system messaging, warning messages, dialog boxes or error messages;
- contain false or misleading application, system update, or diagnostic messaging;
- contain false or misleading “Close”, “Minimize”, “Maximize”, or other Windows functionality;
- contain survey or any other form of pop-ups, pop-unders, dialogue boxes (e.g., alerts);

- request or prompt for a user’s Tagged account username or password;
- imply any type of association with Tagged (e.g., Tagged Movies);
- interfere or otherwise interact with any of the content on a user’s profile page;
- change or hide the Tagged top banner or bottom footer on any page;
- contain any type of user tracking or functionality to provide information to users regarding “who viewed your page” or related information about other users;
- contain an invalid Landing Page URL; or
- contain or create SCRIPT tags pointing to external sources (including Google Analytics), CSS, or IFramed content.

Tagged Logos and Titles:

Ads must not use:

- trademarks or the corporate logo of Tagged in written format or graphics; or
- the copyrighted materials of, or otherwise mimic or be similar to the look and feel, content, navigation, service messaging or functionality of Tagged.

Trademarks/Publicity Rights:

Ads must not:

- violate the privacy rights, publicity rights, copyrights, trademark, contract rights or any other rights of any person;
- use another person’s or entity’s trademark, service mark, slogan, logo, brand name, company name or other identifier unless such party grants prior permission or otherwise permitted by law;
- include CELEBRITY ENDORSEMENTS of any kind;
- include a photograph or image of another person without that person’s consent; or
- contain any type of multi-media unless properly licensed for this specific use.

Advertiser Landing Page:

Ads must not contain a link to any web page that would violate these Advertising Guidelines.

Advertising Content

In addition to the rules and restrictions above, the following is a partial list of guidelines regarding the categories of content, products and services that are illegal or prohibited to post on or through the Tagged Ads.
